Star Gate
Conscious Artificial Intelligence & Time Travel Space Craft

Jack Sarfatti

Newton's mechanics in the 17th century increased the lethality of artillery. Thermodynamics in the 19th led to the steam-powered industrial revolution. Maxwell's unification of electricity, magnetism and light gave us electrical power, the telegraph, radio and television. The discovery of quantum mechanics in the 20th century by Planck, Bohr, Einstein, Schrodinger, Heisenberg led to the creation of the atomic and hydrogen bombs as well as computer chips, the world-wide-web and Silicon Valley's multibillion dollar corporations. The lesson is that breakthroughs in fundamental physics, both theoretical and experimental, have always led to profound technological wealth-creating industries and will continue to do so. There is now a new revolution brewing in quantum mechanics that can be divided into three periods. The first quantum revolution was from 1900 to about 1975. The second quantum information/computer revolution was from about 1975 to 2015. (The early part of this story is told by Kaiser in his book, How the Hippies Saved Physics, how a small group of Berkeley/San Francisco physicists triggered that second revolution.) The third quantum revolution is how an extension of quantum mechanics may lead to the understanding of consciousness as a natural physical phenomenon that can emerge in many material substrates, not only in our carbon-based biochemistry. In particular, this new post-quantum mechanics may lead to room temperature superconducting quantum dot nano-electronic networks with naturally conscious artificial intelligence, as well as extending human life spans to hundreds of years and more. Finally, the recent release by the Pentagon of the November 2004 close encounter of the USS Nimitz battle group with advanced space craft demonstrating low power gravity warp drive making high speed sharp turns with impossibly high apparent g-forces based on today's military weapons technology. I explain in this book how these craft fly according to Einstein's theory of gravity and that they come from our future.
